Objective of Event

- Objectives of IPR refer to the purposes of protection granted to creators of innovative intellectual creations
- Intellectual property (IP) rights serve the important purpose of ensuring that creators will be recognized for their efforts and protected from infringement.
- IPR also helps to promote creativity and innovation.

Description of Event

IP is the protection given to inventors or creators of intellectual products with moral and commercial value. The objectives of IP law are to provide incentives to create and serve the interests of the public by promoting economic growth. It seeks to protect the rights of IP owners to enable them to reap the rewards of their creativity. Some people believe that this gives creators a financial incentive to produce IP and boosts investment in research and development. However, not everybody agrees that financial incentive promotes creativity. Some examples of creations that are regarded as IP include: Literary works, Artistic works, Scientific works, Scientific discoveries, Inventions, Trademarks, and Other products of intellectual activity in artistic, literary, scientific, and industrial fields.

In the first session by Dr. Dipti Patil, provided the insights on the various aspects of patents and their classification. Further, her talk focused on the various questions: To what extent would the rate of development and introduction of inventions decline in the absence of patent protection? To what extent do firms make use of the patent system, and what differences exist among firms and industries and over time in the propensity to patent?

Second session by an eminent speaker from Synnollect Innovations, Ms. Kalyani Ahir delivered her lecture on Basics of IPR and explained the difference between Invention, Innovation, Research and Discovery with suitable examples. In the last session, Dr. Hiralal Sonawane explained about the role and importance of IPR and Patents to the undergraduate and postgraduate students.

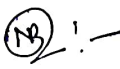

Output of event

This symposium created and facilitated a stimulating environment for the development and exchange of ideas in the management of IPR. The symposium aims at linking creation and protection of knowledge capital to improvement in the quality of life in the Indian context. Under NEP 2020, Research and Innovation is given high weightage so this symposium truly provided the basic idea about IPR and made students aware about the importance of Research, Publications, and Patents in the development and growth of their career graph.
