Description of Event:

Navratri, joyous and culturally rich festival, presents a fascinating opportunity to explore its rituals and traditions through the lenses of science, games, experiments and models. The department of Science in association with Science Committee celebrated Navratri in science point of view. The first day celebration was allotted to department of Chemistry and department of Statistics. The colour of sixth day was green which represents harmony, growth and nature. The students performed experiments like Chameleon reaction, homemade PH-indicator acetcyanin, rainbow experiments, Fuels used in Chandrayan -3, Rullet, Rolling the coin etc.

Outcome:

Students performed non-academic experiments in chemistry. After performing these experiments they understood oxidation-reduction phenomenon through photo excitation. They learned extraction techniques and successfully extracted chlorophyll from plant leaves. They understood the importance of acidity and basicity in our day today life by checking the PH of different vegetables, fruits. Students learned how to draw random samples through real life experiment. They also learned how to find probability of success and failure by tossing a coin experiment.
